Will A Rosehip Scar Remover Work For Me?

There are a number of products available which promise to clear up your complexion and one that has shown promise is the rosehip scar remover. The active ingredient is oil that has been removed from the seed of a rosebush found in Chile. Doctors have discovered that the oil contains fatty acids which help rejuvenate skin and can reverse the damage done by conditions like acne. Some people also report it has been very effective in reversing the signs of aging and too much time in the sun.

For the rosehip oil scar remover to be effective it has to be used over a period of several weeks. The instructions require the user to massage it into the skin until it is fully absorbed. Several doctors have authored studies showing the effectiveness of the oil in removing scars and say they are very pleased by the results. It has also been used by radiologists who use it on cancer patients going thru radiation treatments to reduce the irritation that the treatment can cause to their skin.

Naturally, there are skeptics who question the effectiveness of rosehip oil. The problem with most acne scar removal products is that they take a long time to work. Use of these products must be done over a period of several months and many people lose their patience when they do not see immediate results. For the rosehip oil scar remover to be effective; it also must be massaged into the skin twice a day over that period of several months and some people don't have the discipline to stick with it.

There is a man made version of rosehip oil that is sold under the name Retin-A which is often prescribed for acne. Rosehip oil is a natural form of it and promotional materials say that is why the body can absorb it better than other creams or gels on the market. If you are thinking about seeing if the rosehip scar remover will work for you: a 45ml supply which would be enough for the full treatment of your face will cost about $40.
